E. Germans march for reforms

Associated Press

BERLIN — Up to 50,000 East Germans demanding democratic reforms marched through Leipzig on Monday night, and a massive number of police, some wearing gas masks, were deployed, witnesses said.

The protesters shouted "We need freedom!" "Democracy!" and "No violence!" said the witnesses, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Some said there were more than 10,000 marchers, while others said the number could be as high as 10,000.

The witnesses said protesters marched after attending a traditional Monday evening prayer service at St. Nicholas church.

Throng of people joined them along the way, they said.

A larger number of police officers did not stop the march but cordoned off the downtown area, the witnesses said.

West Germany's ZDF television said armored personnel carriers also were seen in the area.

It was unknown how many police were deployed.

No violence was reported.

Earlier Monday, 18 Lutheran church leaders issued an appeal in East Berlin calling on East Germany's communist government to approve broad democratic reforms and urging all sides to refrain from violence.

The Rev. Rainer Eppelmann, a Lutheran pastor in East Berlin, said the doctrinaire regime must "talk with the people about their wishes and needs."

West Germany's ARD television said many of the hundreds arrested during the weekend protests already had been sentenced to jail terms of up to six months.

The demonstrations coincided with the visit of Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the reform-minded Soviet president, for East Germany's 40th anniversary.

Church sources said a participant in a demonstration last week was run over by a train and lost both his legs.

Saechsische Zeitung, a government daily in Dresden, has said a person was "seriously injured" when thousands of people tried to board freedom trains that passed through Dresden.

The train was carrying East German refugees from Czechoslovakia to the West.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl denounced the East German government Monday as "rigidly authoritarian."

Junge Welt, the Communist Party youth newspaper, said the "gang of Western news reporters" stirred up the protests.

Eppelmann, speaking in an interview with RIAS radio of West Berlin, said Monday: "If the state does not send a clear signal soon and talk with the people about their wishes and needs, an escalation is possible. There is fear in the GDR (East Germany) that violence could soon reign."

Officials in West Berlin said Western tourists were allowed into East Berlin on Monday.

They had been kept out since Thursday because of the anniversary celebrations.

Including legal emigrants, more than 100,000 East Germans have gone to the West this year.

"Wherever the gang of Western reporters went, especially the television crews, certain types showed up seconds later and started trouble," Junge Welt declared.

Communist party gets new name in Hungary

Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Hungary — The Communist Party has changed its name and embraced democratic aspirations, but its members on Monday retained the head of the old party in a compromise vote.

Delegates to the closed session said Rezso Nyers was chosen as head of the Hungarian Socialist Party's collective presidency after dissatisfied reformers reluctantly agreed to support him.

Hours before beginning the closed session, the party congress adopted a manifesto pledging commitment to democracy and a break with the Marxist-Leninist orientation of its Communist predecessor.

Despite the stated commitment to democracy, reformist delegates have expressed concern that the new party does not differ sufficiently from its predecessor.

The choice of Nyers to continue as leader was expected to increase the anxiety of some who wanted a clean break with the past.

Ideological differences among the three top men in the collective leadership emerged before the secret ballot, but Premier Miklos Nemeth told reporters before entering the hall that "the danger of a split has been averted." He did not elaborate.

Nemeth was said earlier to be siding with Imre Pozsgay, a fellow reformer and the third man in the leadership, against Nyers, who is considered a centrist.

On Saturday, the congress laid the Socialist Workers (Communist) Party to rest and founded the Hungarian Socialist Party in a vote without parallel in the Soviet bloc. That opens the way for Hungary's first free national elections in 41 years.

Founding documents described the new party as having Euro-Communist and democratic Socialist leanings, committed to a free market economy and a parliamentary democracy.

Its formation was the latest bold reform in Hungary, whose democratic strivings have placed it, along with Poland, in the vanguard of change in the Soviet bloc.

In a compromise, the congress rejected demands of radical reformers that old-line Marxists be shut out, stipulating instead that anyone accepting the new party's orientation in writing could become a member.

Reformers were disturbed further Sunday when Nyers declared support for political activity on the job. Delegates subsequently passed a motion to continue party politics in factories and shops, despite reformist protests that such activity smacked of the old Communist Party political cells.

The conservative Marxist Unity Platform issued a statement saying the old party still lives and urged Communists not to join the new one.

Fuel plant opens

By TRENTON K. RICKS
Universe Staff Writer

The producer of an essential rocket fuel component officially opened its doors in Iron County last week.

The dedicatory ceremonies for Western Electrochemical Company (WECCO) took place last Friday, 14 miles northwest of Cedar City.

WECCO produces ammonium perchlorate, an oxidizing agent used in solid fuel rocket motors, essential to a large number of U.S. space and missile programs.

American Pacific Corporation of Nevada, WECCO's parent company, built the 22-building complex to replace PEPCON, a plant that was destroyed by a May 1988 explosion in Henderson, Nevada.

Officials at American Pacific won't speculate on the cause of the explosion. "The matter is now in litigation and it's for the courts to decide," said Connie Brennan, a representative of Joyce Advertising, a Las Vegas firm handling public relations for American Pacific.

After the explosion at PEPCON last year, American Pacific was under pressure from NASA and defense industries to resume operations quickly. This time factor was the most important reason Iron County was chosen as the site for the new plant.

"Because of the nature of our product, we had to begin construction of the new plant fast," said a spokesman for American Pacific.

"The land in Utah was privately held and already zoned for our needs."

Brennan said a group of Utah businessmen approached American Pacific with the proposal.

"The Utah proposal put the plant back in production sooner than anything in Nevada," Brennan said.

WECCO, one of two manufacturers nationwide of rocket fuel components, will produce 30 million pounds of ammonium perchlorate annually and can be expanded to produce 40 million pounds if needed.

Ammonium perchlorate is used in solid rocket boosters. Each space shuttle launch requires approximately 1.7 million pounds of the oxidizing agent, WECCO officials said.

Pres. Monson speaking at devotional

President Thomas S. Monson, second counselor in the First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak today at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

President Monson was ordained second counselor in the First Presidency in Nov. 1985. He was made a member of the Quorum of the Twelve in 1963.

President Monson received his master's degree in business administration at BYU and serves on the Executive Committee of the BYU Board of Trustees.

President Monson's address will be broadcast live on KBYU-FM, Channel 89.1, and KBYU-TV, Channel 11, and rebroadcast on Oct. 15, at 6 a.m., 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Soviet media reports UFO

Associated Press

MOSCOW — It was a close encounter of the Communist kind.

Towering, tiny-headed humanoids from outer space landed their UFO in the Russian city of Voronezh and emerged for a promenade around the park, spreading fear among residents.

At least that's what the official Tass news agency said Monday.

Tass, contributing to a string of weird tales that have crept into the formerly stuffy state-controlled media in recent months, said in a straight-faced report that Soviet scientists vouched for the UFO's landing.

"Scientists have confirmed that an unidentified flying object recently landed in a park in the Russian city of Voronezh," Tass said. "They have also identified the landing site and found traces of aliens who made a short promenade about the park."

A Tass duty officer, contacted Monday evening by telephone, refused to identify the reporter who sent the dispatch from Voronezh, but stood by the story. "It is not April Fool's today," he said.

According to Monday's Tass report, a large shining ball or disk was seen hovering over the park by Voronezh residents. They saw the UFO land and up to three creatures similar to humans emerge, accompanied by a small robot, Tass said.

"The aliens were three or even four meters (9-12 feet) tall, but with very small heads," the news agency quoted witnesses as saying. "They walked near the ball or disc and then disappeared inside."

The report resembled a story last summer in the daily newspaper Socialist Industry, which carried an alleged "close encounter" between a milkmaid and an alien in Central Russia's Perm region.

In that report, milkmaid Lyubov Medvedev was quoted as saying she encountered an alien creature "resembling a man, but taller than average with short legs." The creature, she said, had "only a small knob instead of a head."

The Tass report, which did not give the date of the purported "landing" in Voronezh, said onlookers were "overwhelmed with a fear that lasted for several days."

Genrikh Silanov, head of the Voronezh Geophysical Laboratory, told Tass that scientists investigating the UFO report found a 20-yard depression with four deep dents, as well as two pieces of unidentified rocks.

"At first glance, they looked like sandstone of a deep-red color. However, mineralogical analysis has shown that the substance cannot be found on Earth," Tass quoted Silanov as saying.

"However, additional tests are needed to reach a more definite conclusion," he said.

Silanov said the landing site and path taken by the aliens was confirmed using the "biolocation" method of tracking. The agency did not explain what that was.

Further confirmation came from witnesses in Voronezh, 300 miles southeast of Moscow, who were not told of the experiments and whose accounts coincided precisely with the scientific findings, Tass said.

Other recent examples have included sightings of abominable snowman-type creatures, and a tale about a young mystic who goes into a trance and flies about the cosmos. A rash of mystics and ESP-artists also have invaded state TV.

Hugo victims still cleaning up; Provo Red Cross gives them aid

By RUTH H. MANWARING

Hurricane Hugo may be gone from weather charts but reminders of the hurricane are still evident for many South Carolinians.

BYU students and football fans contributed $20,439 to the American Red Cross at Saturday's football game against Wyoming to help victims of Hugo, said Corry Tanner, the executive director of the American Red Cross in Provo.

This amount exceeded the $16,000 goal set for the Utah County Chapter, said Susan Neis, a volunteer for the Utah County Chapter.

The money will provide essential food, clothing and housing to the victims. It will also help repair damages and replace lost medical items of individuals and families living in the areas damaged by the hurricane, Tanner said.

Eight lives were lost in Berkeley County, the highest death rate of any South Carolina county.

"For the extent of damage, it is remarkable that the death rate is so low," said Yvonne Hastings, director of public communications for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Charleston, S.C.

Many have suffered minor injuries from cleaning up the aftermath of the hurricane.

"We almost lost one man when a nest of yellow jackets was displaced from a tree," Hastings said.

There are 800 homes in the Charleston Stake boundary and 10-15 of those homes are now unliveable, Hastings added.

Mobile homes were the hardest hit with 100 needing major carpentry work.

In all, 70-90 percent of the 800 homes received some kind of damage, Hastings said.

While most LDS Church members in Charleston have been taken care of, other members in rural areas like nearby Georgetown are in desperate need of everything, according to Hastings.

Catastrophic insurance does cover 'Y'

By ALISA Y. KIM
Campus Editor

BYU students and their dependents are covered by catastrophic insurance for incidents that occurred from the beginning of Fall Semester 1989, said Ryan L. Thomas, associate manager of Student Life and the BYU insurance representative.

The agreement with Deseret Mutual was that the terms of last year's plan for student coverage would continue in the fall until the final details are reached with respect to this year's coverage," Thomas said.

Thomas and two representatives from the McDonald Health Center met with representatives from Deseret Mutual Benefit Association Thursday to develop and secure this year's catastrophic insurance premium.

As a result, the catastrophic insurance policy was prepared and signed by Deseret Mutual Benefit Association representatives and was submitted to BYU administrators Oct. 9. It now requires BYU's approval of the premium and a signature of the BYU representative.

Until this policy is finalized, coverage from last year's plan will continue to be in effect.

In developing the premium, the BYU and DMBA representatives first considered past risk history. An example would be losing money within the past year. Second, industry trends in terms of medical costs were researched. An increase in medical expenses would be an example. Third, additional or decreased risk factors were contrasted with past years.

A dramatic increase of births would be an example of an additional risk factor.

"That is how the process should operate. That is, in fact, what we're doing this year," Thomas said.

Catastrophic insurance was implemented from the guidance of the BYU Board of Trustees. It covers medical expenses between $25,000 and $100,000 for full-time students.

Exclusions from the catastrophic plan do exist, however, they are fewer than the student health plan. "We've tried to reduce the exclusions in the catastrophic insurance," Thomas said.

Catastrophic insurance is not an individual policy, but is purchased from DMBA as a group policy. The premium for catastrophic insurance is not adjusted per capita. It is budgeted as part of the BYU General Accounts.

Nobel Prize winners get playoff tickets

SAN FRANCISCO — Two University of California cancer researchers won the Nobel Prize in medicine Monday and immediately reaped the perquisites of success: box seats at the National League baseball playoffs.

"We're off to the game — just got tickets," a jubilant J. Michael Bishop said shortly after he and Harold E. Varmus learned that they had won this year's prize.

The 50-member Nobel Assembly of the Karolinska Institute, Sweden's largest and oldest medical university, cited Bishop and Varmus for their discovery that cancer genes in certain viruses are altered forms of normal animal genes.

The research helped scientists understand how cancer begins, and it "widened our insight into the complicated signal systems which govern the normal growth of cells," the assembly said.

Varmus called the research a "cornerstone in understanding the genetic mosaic of cancer."

"The basic idea that we helped establish is that cancer has its origins in genes that normally do us some good. But after they become abnormal through mutation, they cause a role in cancer," he said.

The two scientists are colleagues at the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco. They originally published their prize-winning findings in 1976.

HUD approved 1/3 of loan budget in 1 day

WASHINGTON — Federal HUD officials approved $35 million in loans on the last day of fiscal 1988 in an apparent rush to spend the money before it was transferred to another program, according to auditors and agency documents.

Most of the Section 312 multifamily housing loans were approved despite incomplete applications or processing, according to auditors who alerted the department's general counsel to the questionable loans.

The auditors were told the government was legally bound to fund nearly all of them.

"Where commitments were made they were honored, but (HUD) will not be making conditional commitments in the future," said Housing and Urban Development spokesman Jack Flynn.

Section 312 multifamily housing loans totaling more than $40 million were approved in the final month of fiscal 1988 — out of about $100 million budgeted for the entire fiscal year — including $35.3 million on Sept. 30, 1988, the final day of the budget year, according to HUD records.

Profits high protection low, analysts say

WASHINGTON — Despite a string of record profits, hundreds of commercial banks and the government insurance fund that guarantees their deposits, are far less healthy than they seem, analysts say.

The warnings are making members of Congress nervous just two months after they enacted a $50 billion, three-year bailout of the savings and loan industry.

Legislators remember all too well the reassurances they heard from regulators and industry executives while the S&L business was crumbling, and how quickly hints of trouble mushroomed into the most dire financial crisis since the Depression. Two well-known banking economists, Robert E. Litan of the Brookings Institution, a liberal think tank, and R. Dan Brumbaugh Jr. of Stanford University, report that commercial banks, though better off as a whole than S&Ls, may be heading for trouble themselves.

Litan, appearing before the Senate Banking Committee last week, warned that about two-thirds of the reserves in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.'s bank fund will be needed for banks that are weak or already insolvent.

Lawmakers' attack jolts CUP coalition

PROVO — A coalition of environmental, outdoor and conservation groups pushing for reassessment of the Central Utah Project says it was taken aback by criticism from two Utah lawmakers.

"We didn't expect to be called names and attacked," said coalition spokesman Sam Rushforth, one of the group's representatives. "We believed we were doing a very responsible thing. This document contains well-documented facts and legitimate questions."

But Sen. Jake Garn and Rep. Howard Nielson, both R-Utah, lashed the 7-member coalition for bringing up issues they felt already had been exhaustively studied. Garn said the group's environmental attack was "deliberately timed to try to influence decisions within the (Utah) delegation," which is trying to reach a consensus on reauthorizing the water project.

"Our timing is neither bad nor coincidental," said Gary Bryner, a member of the coalition. The Utah delegation should welcome constructive criticism that may save the Central Utah Project, said Bryner.

Ute indians and Chevron dispute lease

SALT LAKE CITY — The Ute Indian Tribe says its demand that Chevron USA quintuple its payments for a 20-year lease on reservation land in eastern Utah's Uintah Basin amounts to a take-it-or-leave-it offer.

The tribe has told the petroleum giant that it must pay about $690,000 for the lease, five times what the company is willing to spend. Chevron operates a pipeline that stretches from the Uintah Basin to its refineries in North Salt Lake. Chevron officials have said they will take the dispute to the federal courts, if necessary. But tribal officials say they will stand firm, even if it means the 40-year-old pipeline is pulled from the reservation.

"We're not concerned about it. If they want good working relations then they are going to have to give a little bit," said Tribal Business Committee member Stewart Pike.

Pike said Chevron's past arrangements for leasing a right of way for the pipeline took advantage of the Utes. The tribe's latest offer for the next 20 years should make up for lost revenues, he said.

Bands to clash for top honors

By S.C. DAVIS
Universe Staff Writer

Seventeen bands from throughout Utah, Idaho and Nevada will meet at Cougar Stadium tonight for the 12th annual Rocky Mountain Invitational Band Festival.

The festival will feature some of the area's top high school bands, said Ron Brough, assistant director of the BYU Cougar Band.

"Some of these bands have been perfecting their shows since June," said Cougar Band Director Don Peterson.

"We expect more than 2,000 participants on the field," he said.

Peterson said high school bands value the opportunity to attend the festival because it gives each band the chance to receive feedback from national judges. The judges offer both written and verbal critiques to help participants refine their own shows, he said.

"We look at it as a public service," Peterson said. "The festival is a good place for band members and directors to share skills, techniques and knowledge."

BYUSA contest winner reflects 'light' theme

By JEFF K. LARSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Casualene Richardson, a junior from Renton, Wash., was awarded first place in this year's BYUSA-sponsored poetry writing contest.

Richardson's poem, "A Metaphor of Brigham Young and Redemption," was judged to be the most reflective of the theme of this year's contest.

Tickets still available for Inaugural Ball

Tickets for the Inaugural Ball at the Harris Fine Arts Center sold out Monday, bringing the total number sold to 1,200.

Although the HFAC has sold out, tickets are still available for the dances to be held at the ELWC Ballroom and the Oak Hills Stake Center said Larry Duffin, ticket manager at the Marriott Center.

There have been 200 out of 2,000 tickets sold for the ELWC Ballroom and 100 of 600 sold for the Oaks Hills dance, Duffin said.

J. Spencer Kinard from KSL News will host the dance at the HFAC and the Salt Lake Symphony will provide the music. The dances will begin at 8 p.m., Oct. 27, and end at midnight. Tickets are $8 per person at the Marriott Center ticket office.

Bands will be evaluated on their music and percussion execution, marching, maneuvering and general effect.

Every school will receive a participation plaque, said Peterson.

Awards will also be given for sweepstakes (overall winner) and first through third place in open class and class A.

The open class consists of bands with a large student enrollment and extensive marching experience. Five school bands, including last year's festival winner, Mountain Crest High, will compete in the open class.

Class A is open to all other participants. Twelve bands will compete in this class.

Drum majors, drum lines and the flag and rifle auxiliary groups from each school will also be judged.

"We've brought in some of the finest band directors available to adjudicate," said Brough.

"They have experience both as public school music educators and as specialists in the areas of drum and bugle corps."

"All of the judges are outstanding high school or college band directors," said Peterson, who has been invited to judge other band competitions.

One of this year's judges is the director of the world champion Santa Clara Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps.

One of the most interesting aspects for both performers and audience is the flexibility allowed the performers, said Brough. Some of the bands center their entire presentation on a specific theme, such as "The Phantom of the Opera."

Others will bring in their own stages to create a musical theater piece, added Brough.

This year, BYU's Cougar Band will give an exhibition presentation based on the music of John Williams, said Peterson.

"We find it exciting to see so many people working together to make the music entertaining," said Brough. "The field always contains a lot of color and originality, and because it is live, you get no tapes or dubbed music. We think this is a good program," he said.

The festival will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the gate for $3 per person or $10 per family.

Court says candidate's job is safe

By MATT MEAGHER
Universe Staff Writer

A Provo city employee running for mayor obtained a restraining order keeping the city from firing her from her job.

Shari Holweg was granted a leave of absence from her job in the Energy Department so she could run for mayor.

Holweg was informed last Thursday that her leave of absence had ended.

"My leave of absence doesn't expire until Nov. 8, and they were putting pressure on me to come back to work."

The reason officially given for terminating my leave of absence is because the department is being overworked during my absence," Holweg said.

"I feel that my leave of absence being terminated was politically motivated, because the mayor must sign the termination order," Holweg said.

"Legally the only way to terminate a leave of absence is for Mayor Jenkins and the department director to mutually consent to terminate the leave before the expiration date," Holweg said.

Jenkins was unavailable for comment.

Holweg was granted the restraining order last Friday which prevented Jenkins, Energy Department Director Ron Rydman and the City of Provo from firing her.

Holweg decided to run for mayor and a write-in candidate because she won a high percentage of the votes in all voting districts except the northeast. The northeast district is where both mayoral candidates Jenkins and Sherman L. Hislop live.

A new two-year program designed to help teachers improve student learning in their classes, teaches there are four processes in the cycle of learning. By using all of the processes the students retention is increased by up to 90 percent.

By MARK L. REED
Universe Staff Writer

The 18-minute lecture. The phrase might conjure up visions of a short class.

What it should conjure up in the future is more effective teaching-learning methods used in classes taught by the faculty of the BYU College of Engineering.

This semester began a two-year program designed to help teachers improve student learning in their classes.

BYU is the only university to participate in the program, titled Integrated Learning System, said Ron Terry, chairman of teacher development for the college.

Other universities have taken part in the program, but not for the length of time BYU will participate.

About 36 faculty members, or one-third of the faculty of the College of Engineering, are voluntarily participating in ILS.

The program is taught by Ken Williamson of Oregon State University, and Pam Hurt, a former school principal from Colorado.

In August, the two consultants conducted day-long workshops for the college faculty and those faculty members who volunteered for the program, Terry said.

ILS is based on the Kolb model of learning which states that there are four processes in the cycle of learning. Each process must be present for learning to occur.

The four processes are abstract conceptualization, active experimentation, concrete experience and reflective observation. They correspond with doing, feeling, watching and thinking.

Research on learning retention has shown that by incorporating all four cycles into the learning process, students will remember up to 90 percent of what they are taught.

"Certain activities support different phases of the learning cycle. By constructing learning sequences that lead students through the full cycle, an instructor can foster a more complete learning than can be achieved from a single perspective," said Marilla Svinicki of the University of Texas at Austin, who has written material on the Kolb method with Nancy Dixon.

All people have different learning styles which they are familiar with, Terry said.

"Most teachers teach the way they like to learn," Terry said. Students who like to learn the way their professor teaches should be able to learn easier.

The teachers who are participating in the program have been asked to record their lectures to be evaluated by Williamson and Hurt.

Members differ on reasons for clubs

Students organize Beta Phi Delta, the anti-club on campus

By JENNIFER SCOTT
Universe Staff Writer

"You shouldn't have to pay for your friends," the fier says.

—No dues.
—No rush.
—No weekly meetings.
—Official "champion" type sweat-shirt.

This is what is offered to students who want to join Beta Phi Delta, an anti-club movement started by BYU students.

Garret Lyman, 24, from Sandy, founded Beta Phi Delta two years ago to make a point. The club doesn't hold meetings, but approximately 250 students own Beta Phi Delta sweatshirts and claim to be members, Lyman said.

"We started Beta Phi Delta to wake people up and show that not everyone was thrilled with the elitist image clubs put off," he said.

Krissi Thatcher, vice-president of Chi Tri Ellas, an off-campus girls club, said she owns a Beta Phi Delta sweatshirt and so do her roommates who belong to other social clubs. They thought Beta Phi Delta was a joke.

"It's very obvious to them the reputation clubs have," said Lyman. "We are attacking the attitude that is prevalent in clubs. We believe you ought to be friends with everyone, not just the people that have the same socioeconomic background you have. That's not what BYU was built on."

A 1986 BYU policy states that clubs must have open membership. In 1988 the stipulation of not allowing pledge activities was added.

"Clubs were not kicked off campus," said Jean Taylor, assistant to the dean of Student Life at BYU.

"Because of our interest in the students' behalf, the policy was made that clubs had to have open enrollment and no pledging activities. Some (clubs) have chosen not to be a part of the university," Taylor said.

Thatcher said everyone in her club votes.

"We give all the girls an opportunity to vote for who they want,"

Thatcher said.

Mark Halverson, 18, a freshman from Minneapolis, Minn., is pledging Tau Sigma. He doesn't think his club excludes people, but that others exclude themselves.

"The only elitist part starts before people join," Halverson said. "They think, 'Is this for me?' and then they go pay their dues."

Lyman said he believes that clubs could really contribute to the campus and community if they wanted to, but they don't seem to want to.

Dan Harmon, 22, from Provo, is pledging The Samuel Hall Society and believes, as does Thatcher, that clubs are a way to meet people.

"It's brotherhood," he said. "We learn how to support each other through hard times and that seems worthwhile to me."

SAC CORNER

General Meeting — Student Advisory Council meets every Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in 378 ELWC. Everyone is welcome to attend these meetings. For more information, call Scott Braithwaite at 378-3901.

Issue of the Week — At this week's SAC meeting, members of the Information and Publicity Committee will open discussion on how to better inform students about what is going on at BYU.

SAC YAK — If you drive to campus and have trouble finding a place to park, show up at SAC YAK. This Wednesday at noon in the Cougar area, members of SAC will be waiting to hear your views on the subject of parking problems at BYU. Bring your lunch and let SAC listen to your parking peevs.

Daycare Committee — Anyone interested in discussing the issue of daycare is welcome to attend a SAC committee meeting devoted to this topic. The meeting will be Oct. 13, 4:30 p.m. in 324 MARB. Bring any ideas, comments, and suggestions you may have on the subject.

SAC Positions — If you are interested in being a SAC member, there are several positions open. The following areas still need representatives: physically disabled students, re-entry students, multicultural students, students of other religious faiths, students in the Honors program, clubs and students living in residence halls.

SAC also needs students to represent the Colleges of Family, Home and Social Sciences, Humanities, and Fine Arts and Communications. Contact Scott Braithwaite or Chris Yorges at 378-3901.

Soapbox — Soapbox will be every Thursday at noon in the Checkerboard Quad.

100-Hour Board — The 100-Hour Board needs more volunteers to do research. If you are interested in spending a couple of hours finding answers to burning questions, contact Scott Braithwaite or Alisa Kim.

JOBS IN HAWAII

TRAVEL, WORK WITH YOUNG MEN,
EARN UNIVERSITY CREDIT, AND MAKE SOME MONEY!

YOUTH DEVELOPMENT ENTERPRISES (YDE)

"The Hawaiian Job Specialist" is now hiring a limited number of mature adult males, to work in Hawaii as staff and supervisors over young men on a pineapple plantation. To qualify you must be: 21 years of age, single, a returned missionary (or equivalent experience), mature, self motivated, and enjoy working with teenage boys.

Job openings are for (1) Mid-January to August 26, (2) March 15 to August 26 (3) May 20 to December 20, or (4) August 11 to December 10. Pay is $350 per week ($1400.00 per month) plus free board and room. BYU credit is available for completion of the training program and internship. Those hired will be responsible for field production, leisure time activities and the spiritual development of young men in a structured program. Some expenses are incurred for air fare, insurance and tour, but an incentive program is available to offset expenses.

Program orientation will be Thursday and Friday, Oct. 12 & 13 every hour on the hour from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. both days in 369 ELWC. For more information call (801) 943-1752 in Salt Lake City or attend one of the hour-long orientation meetings on October 12th and 13th. Call for more information or an interview appointment today.

BYU band remembers China

By LAUREL NELSON
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's Wind Symphony saw history in the making while on tour in The People's Republic of China.

David Blackinton, director of BYU bands, said the 46 members of the wind symphony were right in the middle of the student protests in Beijing this summer.

Blackinton said the band performed in Hawaii, China, Taiwan and Hong Kong. He said the students will remember the tour mostly for their experience with the student protesters.

"We had first hand, eyes on, experience. It was really great. We were there during the making of history," he said.

On the way to performances, Blackinton said the band's bus would drive through the protesters. He said it would take the bus two hours to go three blocks because there were so many people around.

Blackinton said the band members would open their windows and talk to the protesters. He said the demonstrators recognized them as Americans and would cheer them because they represented what they wanted.

"All they wanted was a say in their future. Their government always decides for them. They decide what the students should major in, where to work and what company they should work for. There is no choice," he said.

Blackinton said the protesters just wanted their leaders to come and talk to them. He said the protesters were happy and nonviolent. He said the band never felt like they were in trouble because the protesters were at a stand still.

A member of BYU's Wind Symphony took this picture of the student protesters in China. The streets were so full, it took their bus two hours to move three blocks.

Kim Bachelder, a 20-year-old junior from Springville majoring in music and English, said the people in Beijing were all happy and excited. She said she was not afraid of the protesters.

Blackinton said he cautioned the band members not to outwardly support the student protesters. He said he reminded them that they were guests of the government and they were representing The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He said the BYU students were sympathetic toward the protesters and they hoped inwardly they would get what they wanted. Brian Pyper, a 23-year-old senior from Salt Lake City majoring in music and physics, said the band could see how much the protesters cared about their cause. He said it made him appreciate what he had at home.

Blackinton said they were home about two weeks when the troops opened fire in the square. He said the band felt angry and upset over the outcome.

"I felt horrible. I could not stand it. I don't even know if the students and tour guides we knew are still alive," Bachelder said.

The Boy Wonder to return

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Holy resurrection, Batman! Robin may live after all!

The Boy Wonder of comics, killed off last year after Batman readers voted for his demise in a telephone poll, is about to make a return, a comic book dealer says.

Gary Colabuno, owner of Moon-dog's Inc., a chain of comic book stores in Chicago's northwest suburbs, says sources at DC Comics Inc. have told him a new five-part Batman series will culminate next month with the introduction of a new Robin.

DC's order form sent to retailers for issue No. 442, due out in early November, offers some hints, Colabuno said. It says Batman and "a mysterious youngster" will meet the villain Two Face in an issue that will mark "the introduction of a major new character into the Batman mythos."

Peggy May, marketing manager for New York-based DC, would neither confirm nor deny reports of Robin's return. "We really don't have any comment at this time," she said.

Colabuno says sources at DC indicated that Robin owes his revival to some corporate decisions at Time Warner Inc., which owns DC Comics and Warner Bros. studio.

Production is tentatively set to begin next year on a sequel to the movie "Batman" that could feature Robin.

The original Robin, Dick Grayson without the mask, grew up and became the superhero Nightwing in DC's The New Titans comics. He was replaced by another Robin, Jason Todd, who was killed by The Joker in an explosion.

Holly Claspill is Theonoe in Euripides' "Helen," part of the 17th annual Greek Theatre Festival.

U of U brings 'Helen' to BYU

By KIM ROBERTS
Universe Staff Writer

Her face launched a thousand ships in Greece, but her body is here in Utah.

Euripides' "Helen," a play about the woman whose incredible beauty supposedly brought to ruin the city of Troy, will be presented tonight at BYU by the University of Utah.

BYU is the last stop on the tour of the 17th Annual Greek Theatre Festival. The 7:30 performance of "Helen" in the Pardoe Theatre, HFAC, will be preceded by an introductory lecture at 6:30.

Jeanne Shaw, the U of U theater publicist, said the Festival decided this year it would do a romantic comedy rather than a classical Greek tragedy.

L.L. West, the director of "Helen," said he believes Euripides was interpreting a modern third century B.C. situation in a different way than others interpreted it. Euripides defends Helen by drawing on the ancient legend that she did not run away with Paris, but was abducted by Hermes and taken to Egypt.

"The play has wonderful humor and a very serious undertone. Basically, we fight wars for stupid reasons. Thousands of people died for a phantom or a vapor," West said.

Robert Nelson, BYU professor of theater and former director of a Greek Theatre Festival production, said this production of "Helen" is an entertaining introduction to one of Euripides' dramas.

Each year the Festival travels to various colleges and locations in the state. This is the seventh year the Festival has come to BYU.

Cougar trackster hurdles his way to Canadian National Team

By TODD L. IRWIN
Universe Sports Writer

Cougar trackster Shaun McAlmont didn't begin running the hurdles until his junior year in high school. In January he will compete on the Canadian National Track Team in the Commonwealth Games in Auckland, New Zealand.

Just when McAlmont, a senior from Toronto, thought his hurdling days would be coming to a close, he received the letter informing him of the selection to the National Team.

"All of a sudden, track has taken on a new importance again," said McAlmont.

Following a disappointing performance at the NCAA championships here last June, McAlmont was ready to take a break from running. "I got saturated with track," he said. So McAlmont picked up a new hobby — karate.

Soon enough, however, he was running again. This time in Ottawa at the Canadian nationals.

McAlmont entered the meet as the second seed. He fell in the 110-meter hurdles. With his leg all scraped he still managed to place fourth in the 400 hurdles. He thought he missed the chance of making the National Team, since only two runners in each event make the team.

At the end of September McAlmont received notice he had made the team.

McAlmont said his qualifying time in the 400 hurdles must have impressed the selection committee enough that he was given the benefit of the doubt, considering he fell in his first race and still finished fourth in the 400.

After competing in the Commonwealth Games, McAlmont will return to BYU, compete on the Cougar squad and finish up his bachelor's degree in psychology.

Wherever McAlmont decides to continue his education, he plans to continue running.

BYU hurdler Shaun McAlmont finished fourth in the 400-meter hurdles last year at the Canadian nationals after falling in the 110-meter hurdles.

This time with his eye on the 1992 Olympics.

Back when McAlmont was a sophomore in high school, his football coach encouraged him to try out for the track team. "I started out doing the high jump," McAlmont said. "The next year there were all these young guys jumping all sorts of heights." That's when he started running the hurdles.

Since then, McAlmont's name can be found in Canadian, WAC and BYU record books.

When McAlmont decided to come to BYU some Canadian journalists wondered how the "triple minority student" would like BYU. They said "He's Black. He's Canadian. He's Catholic."

McAlmont just laughs at the statement these days. "I like being different," he said.

He's still black. He's still Canadian. But now he's a Latter-day Saint.

"I listened to the missionary lessons three times," he said. The third time he listened at former track Coach Clarence Robison's house, with the Robison's and McAlmont's girlfriend. He joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and a little more than a year later he married his girlfriend.

Before attending BYU, McAlmont attended private Catholic schools where he had to wear a shirt and tie every day. As far as adjusting to one aspect of BYU, McAlmont said, "this (BYU's) dress code was nothing."

Spikers go to 5 games; win 3-2

By KARLA CHRISTENSEN
Universe Sports Writer

It was a seesaw battle for the BYU women's volleyball team as they defeated the Washington State Cougars in another challenging five game match scoring 15-8, 5-15, 15-6, 6-15 and 15-5.

"The secret of our success is our serving," said Coach Elaine Michaelis. "We have a variety of serves which keeps the other team out of their offense."

Sophomore outside hitter Tea Nieminen with three service aces led the team to a total of seven aces and junior middle blocker Becky Molen hit a high of .370 with 13 kills during the five game match.

Senior Cherie Sam Fong had 17 digs during the match with Nieminen right behind with 15 digs giving the team a total of 64 digs during the match.

The Cougars (12-7) will return to High Country Athletic Conference play this Thursday against Utah.

"We feel good about the split (1-1) over the weekend in our conference play," said Coach Michaelis. "Right now we're sticking with our experienced players in the line up and working to get in the right frame of mind to play."

Coach Michaelis cited senior outside hitter Stephanie Trane for hitting over .300 in the last three matches and serving 14 aces in 12 games. The Cougars play Thursday against Utah at 7:30 p.m. There will be a serving contest with prizes and senior citizens can come and be admitted to the game for only $1.00.

NEW from Bookcraft!

"Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet"
Brent L. Top of BYU's Religion Department

Clearly demonstrates the need for and process of repentance. Essential reading for every Latter-day Saint. What is repentance? How can I know if I've been forgiven? What is the role of the Atonement in the repentance process? These and other essential topics are here discussed. The gift of repentance is available to all. The call to repentance is to everyone. But, as here shown, repentance is more than a checklist of changes; an inner change of spirit is essential. "Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet" helps readers gain an increased knowledge on this vital subject and lifts them to a higher sense of hope in Christ.

A film about the resurrection of Christ was produced by the BYU Motion Picture Studios. It is scheduled to air next Easter. Actor Alan Lane portrayed Jesus Christ.

Film depicts resurrection

By PAUL T. PIPER
Universe Staff Writer

A half-hour Easter special called "An Easter Dream," was filmed at Brigham Young Motion Picture Studios for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said Robert Bell, producer for Bonneville Media Communications.

The show will air this Easter and is about a boy who, after the death of his father, dreams about the resurrection of Christ, Bell said.

Casey Ellison, 13, from Los Angeles, who has a role in "Punky Brewster," plays the part of Jasen, Bell said. Jasen learns about the resurrection from his grandfather, played by local actor Oscar Rowland, Bell said. Jasen dreams he is in Jerusalem, sees Christ, played by Alan Lane of Los Angeles, coming down a street with the cross, his crucifixion and resurrection, Bell said.

The set is probably one of the better biblical scenes ever built in this state, Bell said. Dick Jamison, production designer at the studio, put a lot of research into making the film, he said. "The film will appeal to the non-LDS."
